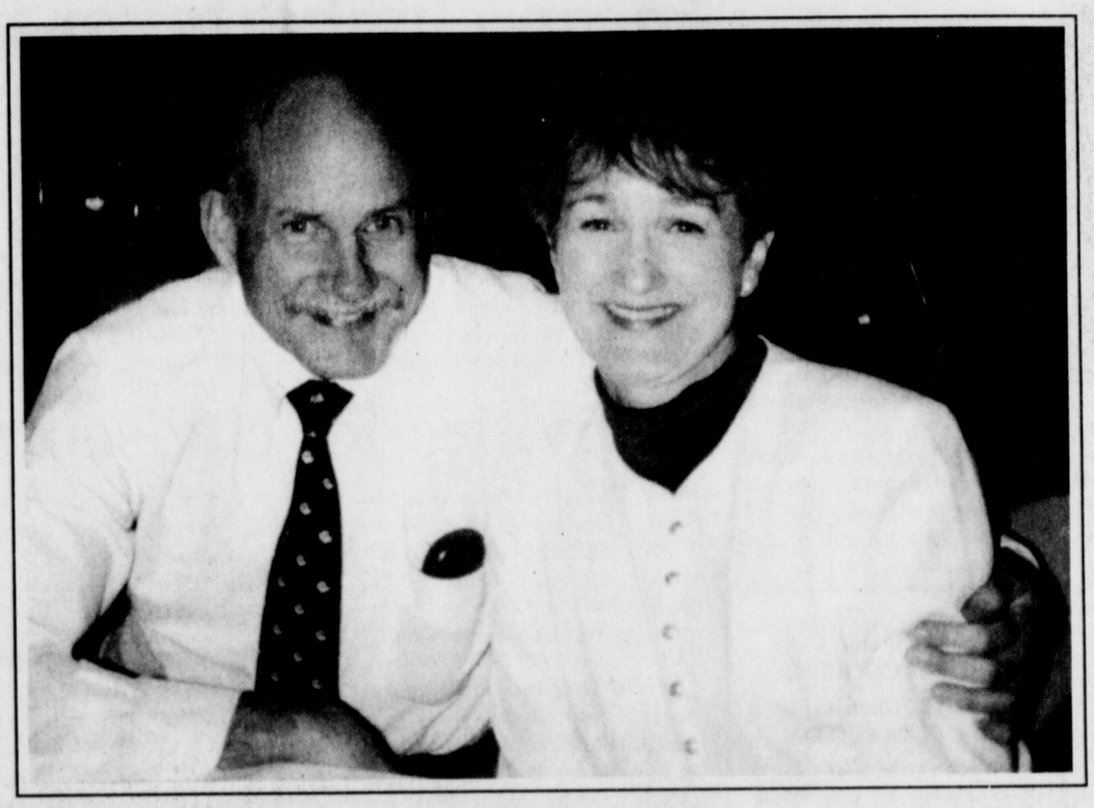
About town:

Upbeat in the face of a challenge

Harvey Scott takes life in stride since MS diagnosis

By Daryl Fisher
Features Editor



HARVEY AND CAROL SCOTT

Life is full of unexpected twists and turns and nobody knows that better than Harvey Scott and his wife, Carol. They were high school sweethearts at James Marshall High School back in the 1960s, with Harvey graduating in 1965, and Carol in 1966.

"We actually broke up for awhile there," explained Harvey with one of those smiles which comes easily to his face, "but thankfully I had the good sense to get back with her. It's hard to believe how fast the time has gone, but in another few months, we will have been married for 28 years."

After graduating from high school, Harvey went to Fullerton Junior College with the idea of becoming a printer. But when he was drafted in 1966, he decided to join the Navy for four years and it wasn't long before he found himself on a ship off the coast of Vietnam. When his service was finally up, he returned to West Sacramento and decided to give law enforcement a try.

"I passed the test and James Cameron, who was the sheriff at that time, gave me a job. I started out in the jail and worked my way up to being a Yolo County patrolman."

The 1970s were very good years for Harvey Scott. He had a wife and a job he loved, and in 1972 his son, Jason, was born. A few years later, his daughter, Kim, joined the family.

"Everything was going great until about 1985," explained Harvey. "That's when I started to notice some weakness in my legs. It seemed like I couldn't stand up for very long without getting tired. Then I went to survival school and wasn't able to run as far as I thought I should. At first I figured I was just out of shape, so I took up racquetball. But when that didn't go too well I began going to doctors to try and find out what was wrong. They finally gave me a spinal tap and that's when they discovered I had multiple sclerosis."

Multiple sclerosis is a degenerative neurological disease which attacks and hardens the myelin sheath which covers and protects the nerve fibers in the spinal cord. "I was only 39-years-old when I was diagnosed with MS and it was a real shock," said Harvey. "At first I thought my life was over, but I wanted to try to keep on working, so I only told a few close friends on the police force. But when it became obvious to me that my disease might put other people in danger, I decided it was best to go on disability retirement."

In 1987 Harvey found another job in law enforcement, this time as a Sacramento County investigation assistant. "I put in four 10-hour days behind a desk now," said Harvey. "It's mostly computer work -- trying to locate deadbeat parents who aren't properly supporting their children. It's important work, and I enjoy it."

Harvey has difficulty walking on his own these days, but he has adjusted well to the time he has to spend in a wheelchair. "MS hits people in different ways. With me, it's mostly my legs. Other people have trouble with their vision and things like that. My stamina isn't as good as it once was, and there's some things I can't do anymore, but you have to play the cards they deal you. If there's one thing I really wish I could do again, it's go for a long walk on a beautiful beach with Carol."

Harvey and Carol are also looking forward to their daughter Kim's graduation from the University of Washington at Seattle where she will receive a master's degree in civil engineering.

"The kids have been really great throughout all of this," said Harvey. "Our son is always over here helping out and I don't know what we would do without him. I've also got a grandchild now, and I guess one of my regrets is that I can't be a more active grandfather. But nobody gets it all. I'm just so very lucky to have Carol and the kids. They've been incredibly supportive."

"Harvey makes it easy on us, too," said Carol. "He's got such a positive attitude. He doesn't feel sorry for himself and he's very appreciative of the good things in his life. He's got a great sense of humor and doesn't dwell on those things he can't change. I think my only regret is that he can't wash the car anymore."

That brought a smile to Harvey's face. "I'm actually a very lucky guy," he said. "Plus sometimes MS goes into remission, so I'll just keep plugging along and hope for the best. One thing I know for sure -- I have a truly wonderful family."

Police investigate possible attempt at child abduction

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento police are investigating a possible child abduction attempt which occurred early yesterday morning on Lisbon St.

According to early police reports, an eight year old Russian-speaking girl was walking to school at about 8:00 o'clock on Lisbon between Yolo and Solano streets when a "vehicle described as a large American-made dark brown car" pulled alongside her, said Lt. David Farmer.

"He may have asked her if she wanted a ride and opened the door," Farmer continued. "The driver in another vehicle behind him knew something wasn't right and moved his car closer to where the suspect vehicle was. The suspect may have noticed him in his rearview mirror and took off."

The suspect was described as a dark skinned male, possibly African American or Latino, either bald or with very short hair. The girl was not harmed in the incident.

Farmer added that although Sacramento has reports of a recent rash of similar child abduction attempts, the description of the suspect vehicle in the Lisbon St. incident didn't appear to match any of the vehicles reported in Sacramento.

Farmer warned local families to make sure their kids know to stay in groups and keep their distance from strangers.

"When children are walking to school, they should walk in groups," he said. "When they do have a situation where a stranger is inducing them to get into a car, they should make sure they don't get close to the car where they can be grabbed, no matter what the inducement, whether it's candy, or a dog, or whatever."

"There are predators out there looking for that lone little kid," Farmer said.

City commission looks at cul de sacs

When the city was young, West Sacramento officials tried to do something they thought would improve parking on local streets:

They tried to ban the custom used by some cul de sac residents of parking their cars "head in" to the curb, as opposed to parallel parking.

A fairly huge public outcy and reaction caused the city government to beat a hurried retreat.

The issue has recently resurfaced, as the city's traffic committee came forth with a recommendation to eliminate this non-standard parking method on cul de sacs. But the city council intervened, said Larry von Kaenel of the city manager's office.

"The city council put this recommendation on hold until such time as time as they had a chance to hear the issue," he said.

The issue, according to von Kaenel, is partly one of consistent parking.

"Right now there are people parked parallel and parked angle-parked, and that really makes it strange."

Resident Arlene Wilder of Portmouth Court says she often angle-parks on that street "because there's more room to park that way."

Wilder promises a public protest if the city again tries to outlaw this method of parking on local cul de sacs.

"I'm disturbed about it and I'm pretty sure a lot of other people will be too," Wilder commented.

No date has been set for a city council hearing on the issue. Anyone interested in sending their comments to the city may write to the West Sacramento City Clerk's office, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento, CA 95691, said von Kaenel.

Harold Turner honored by library group —

News-Ledger Staff Report

The East Yolo Friends of the Library recently honored longtime West Sacramento resident Harold B. Turner as their "Friend of the Year."

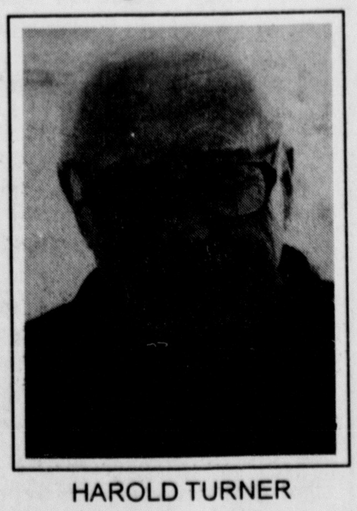
"Harold has been a very special friend to the library for as long as I can remember," said Phyllis Runyan, a board member for the "Friends."

"Back in the time of the dinosaurs, he was the president of the Friends and had a hand in most everything that went on. He collected books, hawled tables for book sales, and always somehow managed to keep things running smoothly."

After his term in office, Turner became a past-president and as such, part of the nominating committee for new officers for the Friends. He still holds that position and his skill in performing his duties ensures that the Friends always have a good slate of hard-working officers every year. "When Harold calls you," said Phyllis Runyan, "it's hard to say no. He's so nice everyone wants to do what they can to help out."

In addition to his many years of volunteer service to the Friends of the Library, Turner, an architect, was also instrumental in the building of most of the schools in West Sacramento. He came to East Yolo with his wife, Virginia, in 1955 and purchased one of the first homes in Arlington Oaks. They later moved to the Lakewood area where their family continued to grow. They have four children, Joan, David, Philip, and Cathy.

"The firm I worked for built what is now River City High School," explained Harold. "We also constructed Westmore Oaks, Evergreen, Westfield, Washington (which is now Golden State Middle School), and a number of others. The state funded most of that kind of construction back then, and they made sure the work was done right. It only cost about $7 a square foot to build a school in the 1950s. It's hard to believe, but now that number is about $120 a square foot."



HAROLD TURNER

Harold was born in San Jose and he can still recall what East Yolo looked like when he was young.

"When my dad drove us through what is now West Sacramento, we were always getting stuck in the sand. There wasn't much here except the El Rancho and the Capitol Inn. Park Boulevard was even once part of a freeway. That's why it's so wide. No, West Sacramento has really grown up since I first arrived on the scene, but the people are still great and Virginia and I are very glad we decided to raise our family here. Helping out with the Friends of the Library is the least I can do considering all the wonderful

■ Saving the Fifth St. oaks might mean giving up street parking or 'buffer' landscaping

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The touchy question of how best to widen the 5th Street approach to Lighthouse's development will be on the plate of the West Sacramento City Council tonight (March 4).

The council will have to deal with the touchy question of how to widen the street to four lanes to suit its intended use as an arterial road, while allowing for "buffering" landscaping to protect nearby homes, on-street parking for local residents and, if a group of local activists have their say, to protect a number of large oak trees slated at first for destruction.

"We hope they will make a decision," said Terry Roberts of the West Sacramento Community Development Department. "If they decide to widen the road, we need to get started because we have a deadline."

That deadline is to complete

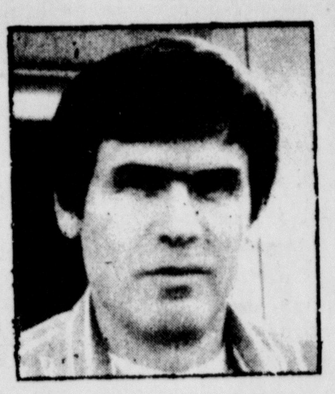
Much to learn from hanging out in the produce aisle

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

The other afternoon I was working at the News-Ledger when I was suddenly hit by an incredible urge to have a big, healthy salad for dinner. I don't know where the urge came from -- I'm not that much of a salad eater -- but for the next hour or so I could hardly think of anything else.

Fortunately, the News-Ledger is right across the street from Raley's, so when I had finished my work, I immediately hurried over to the store, grabbed the first shopping cart I saw, and made a beeline for the produce section.

Still under the influence of the salad urge, I quickly scanned all the packaged and bulk greenery and decided that what I really wanted to do was purchase enough ingredients to create the salad of all salads! And the possibilities seemed absolutely endless. There was head lettuce, green leaf and red leaf lettuce, mustard greens, red cabbage, celery, hot house tomatoes, cherry tomatoes, vine ripe tomatoes, bean sprouts, radishes, broccoli florets, watercress, romaine lettuce, green bell peppers, mushrooms, green onions, and much, much more.

The carrot section alone took forever to figure out. Did I want baby carrots, or bulk carrots, or mini-peeled carrots, or fresh California carrots? And did I want to spice my salad up? If so, there were serrano peppers, and short green chili peppers, and pasilla peppers, and long green peppers, too.

Then, with my cart overflowing with every kind of lettuce and vegetable imaginable, I happened to glance across the aisle, only to discover that corporate America has even figured out a way to take the fun out of shopping for the perfect salad.

Much to my surprise, there were rows upon rows of pre-packaged salads -- whole salads in big plastic bags. One of them was even all the way from France, and the label on the outside read, "May contain mizuni, tatsoi, arugula, baby green and red oak, tango, and lolla rosa."

As I was trying to remember if I had ever eaten any of those things before, a white-haired lady in her 60's or 70's pushed her cart up next to mine and said, "Excuse me, but aren't you that young man who writes for the newspaper?"

Anyone who calls me a young man gets my immediate and undivided attention and I nodded my head 'yes'.

"Oh, good," she said with a warm smile, "I thought it was you. You know, I've been wanting to mail you something for ages, but I never seem to get around to it. Here, I think it's in my purse. I'll give it to you now, if you don't mind. It's just a little something I think your readers might enjoy."

As the tiny woman with the white hair searched through her purse for the piece of paper she wanted me to have, I returned my attention to all the different kinds of packaged salads on display. And right next to them was my next dilemma -- which salad dressing to purchase.

Did I want chunky blue cheese, or creamy roasted garlic, or classic Caesar, or Newman's own balsamic vinaigrette, or tangy tomato bacon, or zesty Italian, or cheese fantastico, or oriental, or honey mustard, or fat-free poppyseed. "Don't they just have ranch or thousand island?" I mumbled to myself.

"Here you are, young man," said the kind lady as she gave me a neatly folded piece of paper with difficult to read handwriting scribbled on it. "You don't have to look at it now. But it might come in handy when you write about young people, as I know you do from time to time."

I thanked her for the piece of paper and put it in my pocket. Seemingly sensing that I was still under the salad urge, she returned my smile and moved slowly on down the aisle.

By the time I had returned all the fresh lettuce and vegetables to their proper resting places -- I had decided to go with a packaged salad after all -- and stood in line to pay for it, the salad urge had mysteriously disappeared almost as suddenly as it had arrived.

What a big waste of time that had all been, I thought to myself when I finally got home. But later that evening, with nothing else better to do, I reached into my pocket, took out the crumpled piece of paper I had almost forgotten about, and began to read. It was entitled, "Children Learn What They Live", and I hope it makes your day just like it did mine.

If a child lives with criticism, he learns to condemn.

If a child lives with hostility, he learns to fight.

If a child lives with ridicule, he learns to be shy.

If a child lives with shame, he learns to feel guilty.

If a child lives with choices, he learns to be patient.

If a child lives with encouragement, he learns to be confident.

If a child lives with praise, he learns to be appreciative.

If a child lives with fairness, he learns about justice.

If a child lives with security, he learns about faith.

If a child lives with approval, he learns to like himself.

If a child lives with acceptance and friendship, he learns to find love in the world.

Flood damaged property may mean eligibility for tax relief

Yolo County Assessor Alan Flory reminds county taxpayers that if they own property that has been damaged by recent floods they may be eligible for property tax relief.

The property tax relief program authorizes county assessors to recognize losses in property values resulting from calamities. The loss in value must exceed $5,000. Once granted, the damaged property will retain its lower value, with reduced taxes, from the day of the disaster until it is restored, repaired, or reconstructed.

Property owners who have suffered damage from the floods should file a claim for reduced assessment with the assessor's office at 625 Court Street, Room 104, Woodland, 95695. Telephone: (530) 666-8135. State law normally requires that the claim and supporting information be filed within 60 days of the date of the disaster.

However we urge eligible property owners to contact our office as soon as possible to file claims or to obtain more information.

City Emergency Center Stands Up To February Storms

Throughout February, the El Niño forecast sounded like a freeway offramp at rush hour as one storm after another waited for the green light to rain havoc over Northern California. In West Sacramento, the city's Emergency Operations Center (EOC) was put to the test following months of planning and training to benefit emergency response services. "When it became time to open the EOC this year, a cohesive team was assembled and worked together effectively," said EOC Director Bill Summers. "Training and experience helped city staff know what to expect and know what to do."

After tropical storms pounded the region in early 1997, the city of West Sacramento dedicated time during the remainder of the year to planning for the next El Niño. Field equipment and supplies were stockpiled, links between local and regional emergency support agencies were strengthened, communication plans were expanded, and city employees received emergency response training through the Standardized Emergency Management System.

These preparations were put to the test on Wednesday, February 4, when waters in the Yolo Bypass reached the 19 foot level, the designated level requiring the opening of the EOC. A trouble spot detected on one of the levees became the center of attention during the first days the EOC was open. Crews from Public Works, Parks and Community Services, and the Fire Department positioned sandbags and plastic sheets to patch two areas where soil had slipped on the land side of the Reclamation District's Levee 537 (RD 537). At no time was the city in danger of flooding or facing evacuation.

Weather conditions kept the EOC open on a 24-hour basis throughout the first weekend of February, with several city departments dividing shifts to monitor weather and river conditions, update city information sources and respond to logistics issues. Members of the Volunteers In Policing assisted in patrols of levees, checking for any signs of storm damage.

The response of the EOC team impressed West Sacramento Mayor Wesley A. Beers. "I was proud to see the quality of work and confidence displayed by city staff. I felt we remained in complete control of the situation."

So into history roared February, taking with it major rainfall records. The EOC had proven it could withstand the worst of El Niño. It would be ready the next time, too.

'98 Raider tennis squad resumes winning tradition

From River City High School

The River City High School Tennis Team appears to be picking up right where it left off last season as week one of the 1998 campaign saw the Raiders post a pair of shutouts. The opening contest was last Thursday against Bret Harte High School from Angels Camp, a team from the Mother Lode League. The host Raiders dominated singles play as Sarom Phoung, playing his first-ever match in the #1 boys spot won easily 6-2, 6-1. Jeff Wright, Douangchanh Lattasima, and Aenoy Xayasone also cruised to easy victories allowing a mere two games between the three of them.

In doubles, the Raiders had six players competing at the varsity level for the firs time and all came away with wins. The least experienced duo was the #2 girls doubles team of Ka Yang and Erin Cheechov, a pair of freshmen who pulled out a 10-5 win. Sophomores Prak Pich and Sarika Chand won convincingly 10-1 in the #2 mixed doubles match while another newcomer, Khonesavanh Lattasima, teamed with veteran Sue Yang for a 10-3 win in the #1 girls doubles contest.

Jennifer Pollard, a junior, also won her first varsity match, 10-3 at #1 mixed doubles with partners Khampheng Insixiengmay. To complete the 9-0 shutout, Aaron Potnick and Phoungeun Souvannaphoungeun won their boys doubles match 10-3.

The next day the Raiders hit the road, travelling up to Jackson to take on the Argonaut Mustangs, another Mother Lode League School. The results, while a little closer in some matches, were quite similar -- a 7 to 0 RC victory. Phoung battled one of the Sac-Joaquin Section's better players in Neil Carlson and came away with a 7-5, 6-4 win while Lattasima posted a crushing 6-0, 6-0 win in the day's only singles matches. The team's other two seniors, Wright and Xayasone, played mixed doubles together and only lost one game.

In the other doubles matches, the boys were pushed while the girls coasted. Potnick and Souvannaphoungeun dropped the first set before pulling it together for a 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 win in the #1 boys doubles contest and Insixiengmay and Pich teamed up for a 6-3, 7-6 victory at #2. Returning from the girls basketball team, veteran Loan Nguyen and fellow junior Sue Yang won 6-2, 6-2 and #1 girls while Pollard and Khonesavanh Lattasima dominated 6-0, 6-2 at #2.

In the week ahead, the Raiders meet Natomas High at the Natomas Racquet Club tomorrow at 3:30 p.m., travel to Dixon for a 3:15 p.m. contest on Friday, and host a very tough Livingston team next Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. at River City.

The 1998 NCA men's basketball tournament is just ten days away, as the nation's top 64 teams prepare to crown a new collegian champion. Sacramento will be hosting eight teams in the first and second round of the Western Regional at the Arc Arena on Thursday, March 21 and Saturday, March 14. Boise State, Idaho will host the remaining eight teams in the West as the teams battle to the sweet sixteen regional at Arrowhead Arena in Anaheim on Thursday, March 19 and Saturday, March 21.

The final four teams will then meet in San Antonio, Texas at the famous Alamodome on March 29th with the final game on Tuesday, March 31. Trivia question No. 1 -- Do you remember who won the title last year and which player was named the tournament MVP? Answer -- Arizona beat Kentucky 84-79 in overtime and Arizona forward Miles Simeon was named the tournament's MVP. Here's another trivia question for basketball fans. How many NCO tournament MVP's have played on the Sacramento Kings? The answer is four -- Corliss Williamson (1994), Bobby Hurley (1992), Pervis Ellison (1986) and Ed Pinckney (1985).

Let's talk baseball, in particular about the San Francisco Giants and their outlook for the 1998 season. The Giants starting day line-up looks a lot like last seasons with Bonds, Hamilton, and Javier in the outfield. The infield may change a little bit with shortstop Hose Viscaino moving to the Dodgers. The Giants will give Rich Aurilla or Rey Sanchez equal opportunity to win the job during spring training. Brian Johnson (catcher), J.T. Snow (first base) and Jeff Kent (second) should round out the infield with Bill Mueller battling newly acquired third baseman Charlie Hayes for the hot corner. The Giants pitching staff looks pretty good so far with Orel Hershieser and reliever Rob Nen coming over via the free agency.

If right-handed starting pitcher Osvaldo Fernandez recovers from last year's right elbow surgery, the Giants could make another run at the Western Division title. Next week we'll talk about the Oakland A's and their new and improved team.

In the boxing world, West Sacramento's Willie Jorrin signed a contract this week to fight a 10 rounder on Monday, March 30th at the Radisson Hotel in Sacramento. If you want to see some good boxing action check out the Pay-per View fight on Saturday, March 7th. The bout will be a crowd pleaser, as two of Mexico's best welterweights do battle. Julio Cesar Chavez will face Miguel Angel Gonzales for the vacant WBC Super lightweight title in a 12 wound bout from Mexico City. I think Gonzales will upset the great champion, Chavez, and probably retire the old master!

But don't miss the undercard, which will include championship bout between WBA Strawweight champion Ricardo Lopez of Mexico against Rosendo Alverez, the WBA champion from Nicaragua. These two guys weight about 108 pounds soaking wet but this bout will be a war!

Kings' Korner

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings (24-36) chances to nail down that eighth and final playoff spot are fading fast. The Kings had a really bad road trip, losing all five games.

The Kings haven't been able to win a game since the trade that brought Otis Thorpe and Chris Robinson to Sacramento. The Kings have lost seven straight games and the Detroit Pistons (27-31), who are having their own problems, come to town on Wednesday night. If they can knock off the Pistons on Wednesday they may see light at the end of the tunnel as the opponents seem to lighten up a little bit, with a road game in Vancouver and a couple of days off before the Golden State Warriors invade the Arco Arena on Monday, March 9th.

The Kings are still experiencing problems at the point guard. Guard Mahmound Abdul-Raul, who missed his eighth consecutive game, is still out with the flu. He remains on the injured list. Forward Lawrence Funderburke has returned to the line-up but needs more time to find his game. Let's see if the Kings can find a groove this week before it's too late to make the post season.

Tickets are still available for the Kings next two home games.

See ya at the Arco!

Uniforms donated for RCHS team

E-2 Living Designs and Rusty Mendez of Mendez Productions donated new practice shirts and uniforms to the River City High School j.v. softball team this year.

Home games this month for the squad include March 19, against Golden Sierra at 3:30 p.m.; March 26, against Colfax at 3:30 p.m.; and March 31, against Lincoln at 3:30 p.m.

The team plans a car wash fundraiser at Todd Shaw Goodyear, West Capitol Ave. and Harbor Blvd., on April 25 and May 9.

Signups for swim team

The West Sacramento Dolphins Swim Team will be holding sign-ups for children who wish to be new members for the upcoming 1998 swim season. Children between the ages of 4 and 18 years of age are invited to join.

Sign-ups will be held at Whitey's Jolly Kone, 1300 Jefferson Blvd., West Sacramento on Saturday, March 7 and 14 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The cost for the season is $50 for the first swimmer, $40 for the second swimmer and $20 for the third and each additional swimmer thereafter (must be from the same family).

To register, swimmers must have a copy of their birth certificate. All previous members must be signed up by March 5 in order to keep their spot on the roster. All new members are encouraged to show up early to ensure a spot on the roster for this year as team size will be limited.

For additional information, please call Pamela Beatty, president, at 373-1620, or Patti Lamb, registrar, at 371-4245.

News-Ledger Editorial:

Trade-offs on Fifth Street project

Something has got to give, and the West Sacramento City Council has got to decide what it is.

The city is under the gun to complete the widening of Fifth St., in the Broderick neighborhood close to the river, so that Lighthouse can successfully market its home lots. The original plan for the street widening, however, called for the removal of a number of large oak trees -- including two large enough to be specially protected by city ordinance -- to make way for the additional lanes, sidewalk and landscaping.

A number of citizens protested.

City staff has responded with alternate proposals, which involve trading away landscaping, a median, or on-street parking in order to save the trees.

Clearly, we can't have all of the above. What will stay and what will go will largely be a factor of what the city council hears from nearby residents, and this is the way it should be.

Lighthouse has agreed, meanwhile, to accept either of the city-sponsored alternatives, and has agreed to extend the deadline for the city to complete the street widening into early '99.

This is to their credit. The development itself, however, has been relieved of its obligation to the city to build a marina and has been granted the rights to become a 'gated' community, so a certain amount of flexibility on the developer's side of the agreement is to be expected.

Should the city choose an option on the street widening project which removes the trees, it should scrap the initial tree replacement plan, though. That plan called for a one-to-one replacement of the old, large oaks with a young one elsewhere in the neighborhood. This should not be regarded as an adequate compensation for the loss of a historic tree when a developer asks to do it, so it should also not be good enough for the city.

Thanks, merchants

We, the Volunteers in Policing for the West Sacramento Police Department, wish to extend our sincere, heartfelt thank you to the following local merchants who contributed so generously to our annual Christmas Project. Because of their compassion for the needy citizens of our community our project was a resounding success. Their wonderful "Santa Claus" spirit was really appreciated by the children.

We apologize for the delay in extending recognition to these wonderful people, but getting all of the information from the several committees correlated and checked took longer than we anticipated.

Get computer literate

While some 200 employees were laid off at Packard Bell's computer assembly line, located at the former Sacramento Army Depot, this should not be taken as a signal that demand for computer-related jobs is dropping nationwide. On the contrary, Congress is being asked to increase dramatically the present 65,000 yearly limit on immigration of high-tech foreign workers to fill the void in this country's domestic supply of such workers. Just ask Microsoft.

WILLIAM A. LOWELL

West Sacramento has responded with the tide in that last semester the adult evening computer classes were but one-third enrolled. Now those classes are full with no doubt others wanting to enroll. On the national level, the big danger of always needing many who are computer-literate but being unable to meet the need with new trainees and/or immigrants may take some or all of their operations overseas, where presumably such action would affect the USA negatively; e.g., loss of jobs, profits and sales tax revenue. Need we say more?

From Marna: Money Store comments

What do you do when you want to drive a price down at a garage sale? You start bringing up flaws, history, economical jargon, comments like, "oh, I didn't notice that it isn't quite what I wanted"...etc. Well that's what business people in Sacramento have been doing to our city the past few weeks. Sacramento Chamber of Commerce even help promote an article about the woes of the money store, which was so misleading and inaccurate, Giannini should be ashamed his name was tied to it. Blustering statements about things which do not even effect a business industry when it is sold or merged were thrown about.

MARNA MILLER:

The Money Store does not have to sell, it is looking into selling. There is a big difference in the approach and attitude. When you sell or merge you take over everything and incorporate it into your way of doing things. Upper management is usually the thing that goes. Sometimes that is good, but merging usually means upgrading another company. It does not mean that the business is leaving the area -- unless someone wants to scare people for no reason.

Guess if you owned business property downtown and West Sacramento was starting to threaten your livelihood, you could resort to name calling, innuendoes, and rumors. If you have the power to manipulate the press, you do.

Attempt to draw Sacramento's business community over here and you will start to feel the ethics of Sacramento.

Business seems to be void of fair play. But, by and large, nothing seems to really bother West Sacramento. This little town just keeps trudging along, few move away, and most of us are content with life, in spite of what others do. It seems this town is used to being treated poorly, but it makes no difference to us what others are like, we don't want to be that way. So, the sun is out, rain goes away, and we enjoy creating a nice life for ourselves -- and we wish others would do the same.

Another press "hit" piece generated a few phone calls to bring articles to my attention, and after going to the Meadowdale Community meeting, and discussion the "Sandlewood" article; calling the Bee editor to complain about the slanted misrepresentation of our city seemed a good idea. Lesa Lapin 321-1050 was attentive and said she would pass on the comments -- so you may want to speak your piece also.

The other "hit" piece within a week from an "outside" press, was on grant funds we received, and it was subtly demeaning us also. Our papers had an entirely different view of the facts, without having to invent ideas. I asked the Bee editor why Davis' heroin problems didn't make the front page so the joy could be spread around evenly. Pointing out the efforts in each of the articles at least accomplishes information being passed on to the writers. It used to be Mr. Wylie who wrote most of the hit pieces, now there's more. Fortunately, when I talked to neighbors and friends, they said that they don't read the Bee anymore, because they were sick of the way they slanted everything. And, they said that before I talked to them about the recent articles. Local news if void of Sacramento bias -- a good thing.

Let's hope our city staff puts out some homepaper articles which more accurately show what's going on in town. Our papers attempt to get things correct. The Chamber of Commerce should also start voicing their opinion to the outside world, their new guy has those capabilities, so it should start making a difference for us.

Park Boulevard changing to one lane should spark some conversation in the state street area for our next Traffic Committee Meeting. The community meetings will be talking about that. Our city staff seems hard pressed to get notices to people about things like this, or the notices are two days late. How many times can you blame the post office? Why is it such a strain to get information from the city when you will be affected by it? If Park Blvd. is one lane, Jefferson is only one lane going towards the port, and the traffic backs up now during rush hours, where will be cars be backed up to when and if they close off Park Blvd.?? The point is, there are a dozen streets that will be affected by this change and none of them were notified.

And you have at least three churches which will be affected by the change. If you are one of those affected, start putting in your two cents worth now, while it will make a difference.

MARNA MILLER

Comments from Dan Lungren

From California Attorney General Dan Lungren

In the high desert of Los Angeles County, a four-year-old girl was discovered beaten to death by her parents, who had inflicted upon her major gashes, bruises and human bite marks.

In a Southern California mobile home park, three young children died in a fire while all of the adult occupants of the home -- including the children's mother -- fled the scene to conceal their criminal activity and did nothing to save the children.

In San Diego County, an ex-National Guardsman broke into a National Guard armory, stole a tank, and proceeded down the freeway crushing cars and center dividers. The rampage could not be stopped until police shot and killed the driver.

In each of these heinous cases there was one common ingredient -- methamphetamine.

Also known as "crank," "speed," "ice," or simply "meth," methamphetamine -- as evident in the true life stories above -- is a dangerous and deadly drug, the use of which is rapidly on the rise. During my first term as Attorney General, I visited all 58 counties in California to meet with the local district attorney and sheriff to determine what problems were of top priority in their counties. At that time, only a handful even mentioned methamphetamine as an issue.

Since my re-election in 1994, I have again visited all 58 counties throughout California. In all but one of them, local law enforcement has told me that methamphetamine is their number one problem.

Methamphetamine is truly a unique drug -- what I call a "triple-headed monster" -- representing the often violent and fatal conse-

Report from the school district:

Summary of WUSD school board actions last week

From the Washington Unified School District

Among actions and discussions at the February 24 meeting of the Washington Unified School District Board of Education, were the following:

The board met in closed session at 6:45 p.m. to consider recommendations of administrative panels concerning students #1754 and #2188. Both were approved. The closed session adjourned at 7:10 p.m.

Honorable Mention: Mr. Ramiro Nava, principal, Westfield Elementary School, presented Maria Palominos, instructional aide at Westfield Elementary School with an Honorable Mention award she received at a bilingual education conference on February 7 in San Jose, from the California Association of Bilingual Education, for all her hard work and accomplishments in the Washington Unified School District. Congratulations, Maria Palominos!

Donation received: A donation from Sacramento Indian Health Project, Inc. of $200.00 was accepted. The money is to be used for drumming and culture classes.

Heard a curriculum report on the Elkhorn School Reading Program.

Approved regular school board meeting minutes of Tuesday, February 10.

Approved the following recommended routine and consent items: 1) Change Order #2 for construction of Southport Elementary School; 2) Approval of Continuation of Contract with Department of Mental Health; 3) Elementary schools' WAN/LAN Bids (Bid #11398-40 WUSD); 4) Second hearing for revision of Board Policy 5145.3 -- Nondiscrimination for Disabled Individuals; 5) Emergency Immigrant Education Program -- 1998-99 Application for Funding; 6) Child Development Application -- 1998-99; 7) Summary of Purchase Orders exceeding $3,000.00.

Approved a request from families and staff of Alyce Norman School for students to wear color code uniforms full time with the exception of the last Friday of every month.

Approved Resolution 978-17 designating March 1-7 as "Week of the School Administrator." Resolution No. 978-17 commends administrators and classified educational leaders in the district for their hard work to deliver a quality education to the students and to keep us informed and able to make good policy decisions.

Heard a report from Patrick Campbell, association superintendent, instruction, regarding first grade expectancies in areas of literacy and mathematics.

A report on a new program currently entitled Teacher Support Program was summarized by Mr. Campbell.

Approved a revised job description and title for the current position of director of maintenance, operations and transportation.

Held a public hearing and adopted Resolution No. 978-15 to adjust developer fees.

Held a public hearing pursuant to the provisions of Section 38 and reconfirmed that expenditure of equalization aid and deficit reduction funds will be used to augment the construction funding for Southport Elementary.

Tabled a request to raise the dollar limit on Purchase Orders from $3,000.00 to $7,500.00.

Adopted the 1998-1999 proposed calendars for River City High School and the elementary traditional schools, for the four-track program at Golden State Middle School, and for the single track programs at Bryte and Southport Elementary Schools.

Approved both certificated and classified personnel recommendations with addendums, as presented.

The next regular meeting of the board will be held on Tuesday, March 10, at 7 p.m. in the city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd. in West Sacramento.

LUNGREN from p. 5

quences of using methamphetamine, the costs and dangers associated with lab clean-up and the aftermath of environment hazards associated with methamphetamine production.

Use of methamphetamine frequently causes a drastic increase in violence, causing users to commit spousal abuse, child abuse, physical assaults or homicide. In Arizona, a man high on methamphetamine decapitated his 14-year-old son and then tossed the dismembered head onto a New Mexico highway -- because he thought the boy was a demon. A former meth addict quoted in the Phoenix Gazette said, "You don't really care about the things you're doing. You don't care if you hurt somebody. You don't care if you take somebody's life."

In 1995, methamphetamine was for the first time listed more often than any other drug, including alcohol, as the primary problem for people checking into substance abuse treatment programs in the country.

Even more tragic, in a 1996 study by my office it was found that 35% of children found at lab sites tested positive for methamphetamine in their system. And the problem doesn't stop there.

Crude laboratories making methamphetamine from dangerous chemicals have become a menace to neighbors and a danger to law enforcement who discover them. In fact, one out of every six labs seized involves an explosion.

In California, the number of methamphetamine labs seized statewide continues to skyrocket. While the Drug Enforcement Agency (DEA) seized a total of 615 labs outside of California in 1996, federal, state and local law enforcement seized over 1,500 labs in California alone.

My Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement agents have told me recently that they believe over 1,800 labs -- and possibly as many as 2,100 -- were taken down in California in 197 by local, state and federal authorities. The Golden State now has the unfortunately distinction of being, in the lingo of the DEA, a "source nation" for methamphetamine being distributed across the entire country.

The aftermaths of these labs toxic to the environment are expensive to clean-up. Currently, the California Department of Toxic Substance Control is spending about $4 million per year on lab clean-up. Still, these toxins continue to pollute our land, our air and our water.

I am happy to report that our calls to state and federal authorities for help to fight this growing epidemic have been answered. In October 1997, Governor Wilson signed legislation sponsored by my office (AB 1173 - Olberg) which tightens controls over the manufacture, distribution and sale of controlled substances, and precursor chemicals that can be used to make methamphetamine.

In November 1997, federal legislation, proposed and sponsored by my office, was signed by the president resulting in an additional $18.2 million to fight the growing methamphetamine problem in California.

This measure appropriates the money to implement the California Methamphetamine Strategy, a comprehensive plan that will focus on methamphetamine production and distribution organizations throughout California with three major goals:

1) To control and regulate the chemicals used to make methamphetamine;

2) To prioritize the location, investigation and seizure of clandestine labs where methamphetamine is manufactured, prosecute lab operators and conduct environmental clean-up at lab sites; and

3) To educate the public about the "triple headed monster" -- and the violent and often fatal consequences of using methamphetamine, the danger of lab clean-up and the environmental costs of methamphetamine production.

This strategy fuels the war against this addictive, destructive drug. I applaud Congress and the president for realizing that to effectively fight meth all over the country, we must start the battle in California. We must focus on this problem and stop it in its tracks -- before the tragedies we have faced in California become a reality for the entire nation.

Shooting suspect captured in Sacramento

The at-large suspect in the Jan. 10 shooting of two dwellings on Bell Circle in West Sacramento was captured Tuesday by Sacramento police serving a warrant related to a stolen car.

Zishan Malik, 19, of West Sacramento, was picked up on that warrant in Sacramento without incident.

Malik is believed to have fired a handgun nine times in the Jan. 10 nighttime shooting, narrowly missing residents inside one of the two homes struck. A fellow suspect, David Carter, 21, was arrested earlier in connection with the incident.

Malik is still in custody in Sacramento, said Lt. David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Police log

Feb. 28, 2 a.m.

A 28 year old West Capitol Ave. woman was seen by an officer standing on that street in violation of her probation terms. The officer made contact, learned that there was an outstanding misdemeanor warrant on her as well, and arrested her.

Feb. 28, 2:55 p.m.

A 35-year old 5th St. woman and her co-habitant, her 36-year old boyfriend, were both arrested following a physical fight with resulting injuries.

Feb. 28, 4:28 p.m.

A 22-year old man was arrested for "head butting" his wife on Madrone Ave., causing an injury between her eyes. The man had a slightly injured nose, and the woman said she struck him one time in self defense.

Feb. 28, 12:55 p.m.

A 25-year old Bryte Ave. man was accused of assaulting members of his family during an argument. He threatened to kill his parents and sister with a butcher knife. He punched his sister three times, causing swelling in her jaw, punched his father's head, and injured his mother's wrist. He was arrested.

Feb. 28, 9:28 a.m.

The manager of a 6th St. apartment complex became suspicious when he didn't see a 75 year old tenant for several days, and upon checking the room, located the man dead. The death was reported to the coroner's office.

Feb. 28, 5:40 p.m.

An officer observed a man order his dog to attack another dog. The suspect was arrested for that and for four misdemeanor warrants.

March 3, 1 p.m.

An officer stopped a car at Carrie and Jasmine streets for not having license plates. The vehicle identification number was checked and showed that the car was stolen. The driver said he was the car's owner, but the pink slip did not match the vehicle. The driver, a 31-year old Sacramento man, was arrested.

the project by Dec. 31 as part of an agreement between the city and the Lighthouse developers. Lighthouse has agreed to extend the agreement by several months, Roberts added, but "the months of January and February are somewhat useless" due to frequent wet weather.

Peter Corollo of Lighthouse said his company has agreed to either of the options to be presented to the council tonight, which could trade away the interior median, landscaping or on-street parking.

"We're really waiting for the 5th Street widening" to begin marketing the property, Corollo added.

Roberts said a significant amount of public testimony is expected on the street widening issue at the council meeting tonight. But, although the most vocal activists on the project so far have been those in favor of saving the landmark oaks and other trees along 5th Street from the bulldozer, not all of the local residents will be in favor of the street widening options that save them, she said.

"A couple of people who live or own property on 5th Street have told us they want it done according to the original plan," Roberts related. "They are concerned about losing the on-street parking or about not having the landscaping to buffer them from the street."

"The fate of the oak trees lies in the hands of the West Sacramento City Council," said Lana Paulhamus, who circulated a petition to re-think the decision to remove the trees. "Will their love for nature and concern for the natural environment prevail, or will they consent to the needs of the Lighthouse development?"

The meeting begins at 7 p.m. in city council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento.

years I've spent in this community."

The annual Friends of the Library dinner which honored Turner was held at the VFW Hall. The guest speaker was Kelly Brothers from Channel 3 News and the table flower arrangements were done by the Potted Planters of West Sacramento. "It was probably our most successful annual dinner ever," said Margaret Crawford, one of the organizers of the event.

"The food was excellent, the decorations were beautiful, Kelly Brothers was an interesting and entertaining speaker, and Harold Turner was very deserving of the "Friend of the Year" award. He's such a nice man and speaking on behalf of all the Friends, we really appreciate his many years of hard work and community service."

New officers for the Friends of the Library are John Siden, president; Cindy Tuttle, vice president; Larry Wyneken, treasurer; and Su Sesso, secretary.

City Discussion

A city council meeting to discuss options on widening Fifth St. in West Sacramento at the entrance to the proposed Lighthouse residential development will take place tonight at 7 p.m. in council chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., to address this and other issues on that evening. The delay is intended to give the Lighthouse developer adequate time to respond to city options for the project, said a city spokesperson. A number of local residents protested intital plans for the street widening, which called for the removal of a number of large oak trees.

Senior Spin

"Senior Spin," the West Sacramento Senior Center's takeoff on the "Wheel of Fortune" TV game show, is celebrating its third birthday this month. It has been airing on Sonic Cable TV every week for the past three years. So this month's show is a special of video clips from the first six shows in 1995. It repeats every Wednesday night at 7 p.m. on Sonic Cable Channel 21. Special thanks to the West Sacramento Canned Foods Grocery Outlet which has been donating a $25 gift certificate for each show's top game winner.

Emblem Club #499

It has been a busy month for Emblem Club #499, with its Supreme President of the United States, Lois Minerick, having been visiting Northern California. Minerick, who is from Kankakee, Illinois, has been accompanied by her Supreme Marshall, Ginny Johnson, also of Illinois. Joyce Miller, Supreme Deputy Northern District, has been driving a number of the club members through the rain to the Auburn, Placerville, Marysville and Roseville Clubs to meet her. In spite of the rainy weather, Lois and Ginny seemed pleased to meet the club and have taken California weather in their stride. Doris Mottern is the President of the West Sacramento Club. Her husband, Meryle, is a Past Exalted Ruler of West Sacramento Elks Lodge #2529.

"Pig Out"

In celebration of National Pig Day, the Davis Farmers Market will host the 8th annual "Pig Out" on Saturday, March 7, between 8 a.m. and 12 p.m. at Central Park (between 4th and C Streets). Come on out and pet the piggies, eat piggie food, listen to live piggie music and participate in fun and exciting piggie activities.

Restaurant Guides

The West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce this week announced their restaurant guides are available at the West Sacramento Visitors Center, located in the Chamber office. History society reminisces March 17

From the West Sacramento Historical Society

The West Sacramento Historical Society will meet Tuesday, March 17, at 6:30 p.m. at the Arthur F. Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue in West Sacramento.

An evening of reminiscing with special guest, Joseph "Joe" Childers, a long time resident of the Bryte District will take place. Mr. Childers attended Bryte Elementary School on Lisbon Street and graduated from Woodland High School in 1952. Mr. Childers' family came to California during the gold rush and settled in Bryte sometime between 1919-1920.

The society received a grant from the City of West Sacramento subvention funds to develop a multi-cultural photographic exhibit celebrating our diversity. The exhibit will benefit the community by preserving the historic heritage of our many ethnicities.

Anyone wishing to share family photos with the society for possible inclusion in this exhibit, contact Jeri Hughes Wingfield at 371-7678. The society would borrow the photographs to duplicate them. The utmost care is taken with all items lent to the society.

"Old Mary" and "The Wine Barrel" restoration continues. Scott Miller with Tim Conners of Suncal Construction have coordinated the efforts of the following individuals to restore "Old Mary": Dollar Tow, transporting the fire engine; Casey Yates, Goodyear Truck Tire, provided the tires; Kevin Wilbur, SJ Truck assisted in the restoration process; Andy and Gus Grau, All Diesel Electric are completing the electric work. "Old Mary" has new ties and the engine running.

The society is in need of a VCR, blank VHS tapes, computer, printer, 35mm wide angle lens, tripod, film and camera stand. Anyone wishing to donate one or more of these items is urged to contact Jeri Hughes Wingfield. All donations are tax deductible since the society is a 501(C)3 non-profit organization.

Also, discussion will take place for the election of officers for the society for 1998.

Lana Paulhamus, membership chairperson, states, "Now is the time for everyone to pay their dues for the new year." She can be reached at 372-5117. Funds are used for restoring the two fire engines, "Old Mary" and "The Wine Barrel," membership mailings, purchasing videos and books and other projects.

Individuals may make a donation to the society for the restoration of the fire engines by sending a check to the West Sacramento Historical Society, P.O. Box 65, West Sacramento, 95605.

For further information regarding the West Sacramento Historical Society contact either Jeri Hughes Wingfield at 372-7678 or Louisa R. Vessell at 372-3453 or 451-5749.

Subscribe! Just call 371-8030. Only $20 per year in Yolo County.
